BIOGRAPHY

Composer Brent Belke, has a unique background; a founding member of the catalytic skate-punk band SNFU and of the hardcore, power-pop group The Wheat Chiefs he turned his attention to jazz and classical studies in 1998 and began his career in film and television scoring. He draws his inspiration from a passion to challenge and participates in a wide range of styles, combining raw sound elements, electronics and traditional acoustic instruments. This eclecticism is clearly heard in the string quartet, Asian percussion and electronic textures of "Exposures", in the solo guitar scoring of "Drive, She Said", and in the radio dial variety of "Pretty Boys". Brent covers a wide musical landscape with a keen sense of harmony and melody.

He has a long history of working with director Mina Shum on theatrical features, composing both songs and score. He's composed for numerous award-winning television documentaries, including: Reservation Soldiers, Pretty Boys and Rage. In addition, Belke has scored over a dozen television movies and worked on six television series, including "Road Hockey Rumble" for which he received a Leo Award nomination.

His NFB feature length documentary Ninth Floor premiered at the Toronto International Film Festival in 2015 to much acclaim. Brent is currently scoring the 2nd season of the comedy/romance series You Me Her.
