BIOGRAPHY

Mink is best known as a long-time collaborator with Canadian singer k.d. lang, whom he met at Expo '86 while doing a gig with CANO. Mink has performed on, along with co-writing and producing several of her albums, which often combine voice with string arrangements.<sup>[6]</sup> Mink subsequently performed as violinist, guitarist, and mandolinist with lang's band, the Reclines. A performance for the Grammy nominated album Ingenu, was recorded as part of the MTV Unplugged series at the Ed Sullivan Theater, New York City, December 16, 1992 (aired in 1993). Before that, Mink was a member of the bands Stringband, Murray McLachlan's Silver Tractors, FM and The Blazing Zulus. Additionally, Mink was invited to play electric violin on the Rush song "Losing It" from the band's 1982 album Signals and contributed strings to the song "Faithless" from the 2007 album Snakes & Arrows. He also co-wrote, produced and performed guitar on My Favourite Headache (2000), a solo project of Rush's lead singer Geddy Lee.

Mink has also produced and/or performed on recordings by numerous other artists, a diverse group which includes the Barenaked Ladies, Ann Murray, Dan Hill, Mendelson Joe, Prairie Oyster, Raffi, Jane Siberry, Ian and Sylvia Tyson, Valdy, Bruce Cockburn, Murray McLachlan, Willie P. Bennett, Susan Aglukark, Methodman, Alison Krauss, Feist, Daniel Lanois, Sarah McLachlan, Roy Orbison, Elton John and Heart. Mink was also responsible for the movie soundtrack to Fifty Dead Men Walking,<sup>[11]</sup> which has since received numerous awards and nominations including a 2010 Genie Award nomination for Best Achievement in Music – Original Score, and a 2009 Leo Award for Best Musical Score for a Feature Length Drama. The television soundtracks for Terminal City and Alice, both garnered Leo Awards. Confessions of an Innocent Man, a shocking, heart-wrenching story about British-Canadian engineer William Sampson, won a 2007 Gemini Award for Best Biography Documentary Program. In 2011, the "Glee" TV series used Ben's composition "Constant Craving" in the seventh episode of the third season for its closing number, (performed by Chris Colfer, Idina Menzel and Naya Rivera).

He co-produced Red Velvet Car for Heart's Ann and Nancy Wilson, released in the fall of 2010 and appeared onstage in the band's concert video Night At Sky Church. Mink was back at the helm as producer of Heart's 2012-2013 album 'Fanatic' which included the single "Walkin' Good" featuring Sarah McLachlan. Mink co-produced and performed on Feist's Grammy nominated hit single "1-2-3-4", playing strings and guitars.

Mink is a member of the Black Sea Station, a North American klezmer supergroup. Their debut recording, Transylvania Avenue, was produced by Mink, and released on Rounder Records in the Fall of 2010 as a digital download. He's also produced other klezmer musical acts in the past such as Finjan, The Klezmatics and Chava Alberstein.

Mink is one of only a few people to ever share a songwriting credit with Mick Jagger and Keith Richards. In 1997 Mink and k.d. lang were co-credited as songwriters on the Rolling Stones single "Anybody Seen My Baby?". Mink and Lang were given credit before the song was released because Jagger/Richards felt the chorus was very similar to "Constant Craving", written by lang and Mink in 1992. In 2014 The Knowledge Network's "Take Me Home" series presented a short biographical film on Ben Mink. Mink has one solo recording - the hard to find 1980 release, "Foreign Exchange", on Passport Records. Originally recorded by Daniel Lanois and produced by Allan Soberman, it has been re-mastered for January 2015 digital release.
